With the legislature approving final funding in April for the Department of Correction's move to Tift College, officials decided it was finally time to tell passing motorists on I-75 what the work is all about. Above, Larry Latimer, the department's director of engineering and construction, shows off the new signage. The same large sign will soon be erected near the front entrance facing Tift College Drive, said Latimer. Latimer said they've made a lot of progress in recent months and the first of three dorms is expected to be finished next month.
